As the estates in general appear to have been sold for a very inadequate sum, Board of opinion that it would have been more advisable to have purchased them on account of Government and to have reduced their jummah than to have allowed them to be sold at so inadequate a price. In cases where estates are supposed to be over-assessed, it is to be apprehended where individuals stand forward to buy them for low sums that the purchases are made with no intent on the part of the purchasers to discharge the revenue and to retain possession of the lands; but to make away with as much of the collections as they may be able to realize within the year, and then to abscond, or to purchase the estates again under other names. Collector informed that he should not in future allow the estates to be sold unless adequate offers are made for them, except in cases in which the bidders are men of responsibility	22nd Aug.	6

On the other hand, if there are any places at which shops are not at present licensed, but at which the Magistrate may be desirous of shops being licensed, he (Collector) should attend to any suggestion of the Magistrate on that head, and grant licenses to any persons who may be willing to vend liquor at such new places as may be suggested by that officer	25th July	11-13
